✨ August at RBHS: Big learning. Bold voices. Cultural pride. Champion energy. One amazing community! ✨

August at RBHS was anything but ordinary! From meaningful conversations to high-energy celebrations, from young leaders stepping up to students discovering new talents, the month was packed with experiences that made learning feel real, relevant and seriously fun! Wellbeing was a big part of the August vibe. Through interactive workshops and engaging sessions, students explored emotions, relationships, healthy habits, digital balance and the importance of taking care of their minds and bodies. These experiences gave students the space to pause, reflect, ask questions and pick up life skills that go way beyond the classroom. Because being future-ready means being well, aware and resilient! Young voices took the lead through leadership meets and collaborative experiences that encouraged students to share ideas, take responsibility and work together. They discovered that leadership isn't about being the boss—it's about listening, including, problem-solving and making a positive difference. Confidence? Consider it levelled up!

Culture took centre stage too! Independence Day celebrations brought patriotic spirit alive through performances, art, heritage activities and stories of India's rich past. Festive celebrations added their own burst of colour, helping students experience the beauty of traditions while appreciating the diversity that makes our community so special. And then came the BIG August energy! From the creativity and competitive spirit of Panache - Monsoon Mania, which brought together 18 schools and nearly 400 students, to the fitness challenges and sporting spirit of National Sports Day, our students showed up ready to participate, collaborate and give it their A-game! Through every workshop, celebration, competition and shared experience, one thing stood out—the power of coming together. August reminded us that some of the best learning happens when we learn together, lead together, celebrate together and cheer each other on.

FROM THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK:

The Curriculum We Don't Write Down

Every school has a well-planned and well-structured curriculum that is given a lot of importance in matters of time and effort. It is the skeleton on which the entire school programme is mounted.

And then there is another curriculum. It doesn't appear in the timetable. There is no textbook for it, no examination at the end of the year and certainly no answer key. Yet, in many ways, it is this curriculum that stays with us the longest.

These lessons happen quietly. They happen in corridors, on playgrounds, during class activities, during the lunch break, waiting in the line during dispersal or maybe in the middle of an argument between two friends

Children are learning to listen, reflect and then reply. They are learning the power of words - words that must be carefully thought of before they are spoken. Speech that is not dependent on its length but its impact. They are also learning the importance of silence, of learning to be quiet instead of replying every time - the result is different.

Children are learning to observe - a mate who is sitting alone, a mate who never has a partner even during group activities, a teacher who seems unusually tired, a teacher who looks extraordinarily cheerful. They learn to react in the right manner - a Hi or hello, a question "Do you want to join us?" or a compliment, "Ma'am you are looking very pretty today".

Children learn to wait their turn - wait their turn to answer, to also understand that they may not get their turn. They learn to look for another opportunity and not give up in impatience.

Children learn to say Thank You and Sorry - often underrated. They learn not to take things for granted. They understand that the presence of adults in their lives is a blessing and not a right.

Children learn the true meaning of 'different'. They realise that individuality is important to coexist and must never be altered. They learn to take it in their stride when things don't go the way they planned. They learn that they must work on plan B after drying up their tears.

They learn that failure is an important teacher and has some tough chapters to teach us. Children learn to return something that wasn't theirs, to take responsibility when things go wrong instead of looking around for someone to blame.

Because one day, our children may forget a formula, a definition or even the details of a particular lesson. But we hope they remember to be kind, responsible, listen, respectful, and leave every place-and every person-a little better than they found them.

That is the curriculum we don't write down. But it is being taught every single day.

Freedom Vibes: Celebrating India with Pride!

Our Pre-Primary stars celebrated Independence Day with smiles, excitement and plenty of patriotic vibes! Nursery children rocked an Indian-themed ramp walk, Junior KG explorers took on an exciting treasure hunt, while Senior KG put their India knowledge to the test with a fun India-themed quiz. Through these joyful activities, our little learners discovered the meaning and significance of Independence Day while celebrating the spirit of our incredible nation.

The Primary section turned up the patriotic energy on 14th August 2026 with a vibrant mix of creativity, learning and national pride. Students participated in patriotic speeches, freedom fighter dress-ups, Pointillism Art, tricolour bracelet making, Indian heritage bookmarks and an engaging quiz. These activities helped students connect with India's rich history and heritage while understanding the responsibilities that come with freedom. One nation, one spirit, endless pride!

As Independence Day approached, the Hobby Club took students on a colourful journey through India's rich heritage and culture.  The Culinary Club whipped up a cheesecake inspired by the colours of the Indian flag, while the Indoor Club revived forgotten Indian games like Aiche Patra Haravle and Sakli. The Literary Club brought Incredible India alive through valiant speeches celebrating the states of India. The Art Club created bookmarks showcasing India's national heritage, while the Cultural Club explored India's diverse food traditions through a vibrant potluck. The Nature Club shaped culturally significant forts and monuments using clay, bringing history to life through creativity.

The celebrations reached a grand scale at the RS&T Campus, which proudly marked India's 80th Independence Day by bringing together all its institutes. The National Flag was hoisted by Chief Guest Shri Lalitji Saraf, President Shri Ashokji Saraf and Hon. Secretary Shri Kailashji Kejriwal, accompanied by the National Anthem and the school band. NCC cadets added to the patriotic fervour with Sare Jahan Se Achha and the Rajya Geet, followed by a spectacular cultural programme featuring plays, dances, art, Hindi speeches and other performances. The celebration beautifully honoured India's heritage, history, valour and sacrifices, leaving everyone with a renewed sense of unity, gratitude and national pride.
