FROM THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK:

What kind of a Parent are you?

Parenting style significantly influences children's emotional health, behavior, academic success, and social skills. While most parents blend elements from multiple styles, awareness of these patterns can help families find a balanced approach that combines warmth, structure, and age-appropriate autonomy.

The Four Classic Parenting Styles

You may have experienced either of these as a child.

1. Authoritative – warm, nurturing with clear expectations
2. Authoritarian – strict rules, little negotiation, punishment-oriented
3. Permissive – warm and accepting, few rules, avoids confrontations, acts like a friend
4. Uninvolved – emotionally detached, minimal guidance

The Modern Parenting Labels

In recent years, catchy animal and object metaphors have emerged to describe specific parenting behaviors.

1. Helicopter Parent: Constantly hovers, monitors closely, and intervenes quickly when problems arise.
2. Lawnmower Parent: Proactively removes all obstacles before the child encounters them, preventing any struggle or failure.
3. Tiger Parent: Sets extremely high standards, emphasizes achievement (especially academic), and uses strict discipline.
4. Dolphin Parent: Combines warmth and flexibility with clear rules; emphasizes collaboration, balance, and social connection (like a dolphin pod).
5. Lighthouse Parent: Provides a stable, visible presence; guides and warns of dangers but allows children to navigate their own path and learn from mistakes
6. Gentle Parent: Focuses on empathy, respect, and connection; avoids punishments and rewards in favor of natural consequences and collaborative problem-solving.
7. Jellyfish Parent: Laissez-faire approach with minimal structure, rules, or guidance.
8. Free-Range Parent: Encourages independence and self-reliance; allows children significant freedom to explore and experience natural consequences.
9. Elephant Parent: Prioritizes emotional closeness and security over achievement; nurturing and protective but less focused on strict performance standards.
10. Uninvolved/Neglectful Parent: Emotionally distant, provides minimal guidance or attention beyond basic needs.

No parent is perfect, but aiming for high responsiveness (warmth and support) paired with appropriate demands (clear expectations and boundaries) tends to foster the healthiest development in children.

So which is your Parenting Style?

In the Spotlight

"One story. Countless memories."

History Just Got a Plot twist!

An unforgettable afternoon unfolded as our students attended an engaging session with bestselling author Amish Tripathi for the launch of his first children's book, Dhruw-Tara: The Great Indian History Quiz Book.

One of India's most captivating story tellers, Amish Tripathi is best known for making mythology and history accessible through series like the Shiva Trilogy and the Ram Chandra Series. His storytelling has inspired readers worldwide to rediscover India's rich cultural heritage.

During the session, Mr. Tripathi shared that he created Dhruw and Tara—two school children competing in a history quiz—to make Indian history fun and relatable. He explained that while many children know world history, they often know little about India's past. In the story, teachers act as mentors bringing history alive with inspiring tales. He also highlighted how Indian ideas and traditions have inspired people globally, encouraging students to take pride in their heritage.

The highlight was an interactive history quiz where students eagerly participated. Winners were delighted to receive exclusive Dhruw-Tara tote bags. Students also asked thoughtful questions about his writing journey, books, and inspiration.

Blending history, mythology, and storytelling, the session sparked curiosity, nurtured critical thinking, and inspired students to discover the stories shaping our nation. It encouraged every child to read, question, explore, and celebrate India's incredible heritage.

GROWING TOGETHER. LEARNING TOGETHER. THRIVING TOGETHER.

Leadership Starts Here

Investiture Ceremony – 2026

A new chapter of student leadership unfolded at RBHS, celebrating democracy, responsibility, and the promise of young leaders.

The journey began with spirited election campaigns on 8th and 9th July, where aspiring leaders confidently shared their vision and ideas with the school community. On 10th July, students exercised their democratic right to vote, choosing the representatives who would lead with commitment and purpose.

On 31st July, the school proudly celebrated the Investiture Ceremony, where the solemn pinning of badges and draping of sashes marked the official induction of the newly elected Student Council. The ceremony symbolised not just positions of honour but a commitment to uphold the school's values and serve the community with sincerity, integrity, and dedication.

The ceremony was graced by esteemed guests Captain Bhavesh Rajgor and Captain Jayhan Bhagvati, alongside our respected Principal, Ms. Florina Fernandes. Captain Bhavesh Rajgor, a successful entrepreneur and the first commercial pilot from his community in Kutch, is an avid aviator who has spent over two decades inspiring young minds to pursue their dreams with courage and conviction. Joining him was Captain Jayhan Bhagvati, Maharashtra's youngest private pilot, who earned his pilot's licence at just 17 years of age, becoming an inspiration for students through his remarkable dedication, discipline, and passion for aviation.

Through their inspiring journeys and heartfelt addresses, the distinguished guests encouraged the newly elected council members to embrace leadership with courage, humility, integrity, and a spirit of service, reminding them that true leaders follow their dreams while uplifting others along the way.

Taking the oath of office, the newly elected council pledged to discharge their duties with dedication, fairness, and excellence. As they embark on this leadership journey, they stand ready to inspire, collaborate, and make a meaningful difference, carrying forward the legacy of RBHS with pride.
